INTRODUCTION

The gathering of material for this work was started in 1968 by contacting and securing information from various members of the Hudson families and their descendants who live in different parts of the United States.

Records could not be located to carry the lineage back to the original Hudson immigrant who came to this country. Since the names and addresses of some later branches of the families are unknown, information regarding these branches could not be obtained for inclusion herein.

In order to make this genealogy as complete as possible, it was necessary to copy some information from a genealogy published in 1957, by Jewel Norman Hudson, a great grandson of Jesse Hudson, Washington, D. C.

Full information is given (where available) regarding each descendant. That is, not only the names but dates of birth, marriage, death, etc.

It is hoped that the information contained in this genealogy will be of assistance to any member of the family who desires to trace his family lineage. Data pertaining to related families has been inserted so that, in case any member of these families desires to prepare a genealogy for his branch, the information furnished herein might provide him with a starting point.

Apologies are offered for any omissions or errors that may be found in this work. Anyone desiring information regarding the descendants of Jesse Hudson, Nancy Hudson Kester Goodall, ——— Hudson Everett, or Mary Jane Hudson Wood, should contact:

ORIGIN OF THE NAME "HUDSON"

Early writers differ as to the origin of the name "Hudson". The "ud" or "Hud" prefix may have been derived from: The old Norse (probably Icelandic) "udr" (meaning a son of the night); Danish - "hude"; Normandy French - "hudesent"; Fristan - "udsen" or "ude"; Dutch - "uden" or "udsen"; Flemish - "hudsyn"; or Anglo-Saxon - "hud", "udda" or "ude". The Anglo-Saxon names may have been and probably were derived from some of the other terms set out above which were of earlier origin.

It is reported by some authorities that the name "Hudson" came originally from the syllable of "Richard", and that "Hud" was a North English nickname for Richard, the nickname changing from "Hud" to "Huddy" and then to "Hudson".

Others believe the name "Hudson" was derived from "Hod", a nickname for "Rogers" and from this to "Hudson" (son of Hod) and hence to Hudson.

The more probable origin of the name "Hudson" would appear to be that it was derived from the Anglo-Saxon "Hud" which was a very common medieval name and was apparently an abbreviated form of "Hudda". The suffix "son" was added so as to designate the son of "Hud", hence "Hudson".

CHAPTER 1

FAMILY OF JOHN B. HUDSON (Father of Thomas Croucher Hudson)

The birthplace of pioneer, John B. Hudson, father of Thomas Croucher Hudson, who was born sometime between 1770 and 1780, is unknown but probably was in Virginia or South Carolina. His wife, whose given name was Agness, is known to have been born in Virginia about 1775 (census records of Marion County, Arkansas, 1850). It is believed that Agness' maiden name was Croucher as one of their sons was named Thomas Croucher Hudson and several families of Crouchers are known to have been living in Amherst and Henry Counties of Virginia in 1770 and 1780.

John B. and Agness Hudson were living in South Carolina in 1803, when their oldest son, Jesse, was born. The 1850 census of Marion County, Arkansas, gives Jesse's birthplace as South Carolina (reported by older members of the family to be near Greenville, South Carolina).

Pioneer John B. Hudson, moved sometime between 1803 and 1810, from South Carolina to Kentucky where his son, Thomas Croucher Hudson, was born in 1811. Three daughters, Nancy, one whose given name is unknown, and Mary Jane, were also born in Kentucky.

The family left Kentucky sometime between 1818 and 1822, moving westward and in 1822 (according to family tradition) settled in Arkansas on what was later known as the Uncle Joe Burleson Place on Crooked Creek near the mouth of George's Creek, west of Yellville, Arkansas.

It is believed that this family was the first white settlers in this part of Arkansas, which was then a part of Independence County from which Izard and later, Marion Counties were formed. Marion County formed from Izard County in 1835 and included the region settled by John B. Hudson.

When Arkansas was admitted to the Union in 1836, John B. Hudson was elected the first treasurer of Marion County and served in that position until 1842 (1836-1842).

The 1840 census (Marion County, Arkansas) shows that John B. Hudson and his wife were living in Marion County, Arkansas, and that their ages were between sixty and seventy years but census records prior to 1850, gave the names of head of the household only and did not list the names of wife and children. The 1850 census, Marion County, Arkansas, shows Agness Hudson to be seventy-five years of age and to have been living with her daughter, Mary Jane, who married John Wood. As John B. Hudson was not listed in the 1850 census, it is assumed that he was dead at that time. He apparently died between 1842 and 1850. It is assumed that both he and his wife were buried in the George's Creek community of Marion County, Arkansas, but the exact location of the graves is unknown.

JESSE HUDSON

Jesse Hudson, the oldest known child of John B. and Agness Hudson, was born in South Carolina about 1803. When he was about eighteen or twenty years of age he married Matilda Everett, sister of Thomas Ewell Everett, who later married one of Jesse's sisters. Upon marriage, Jesse and Matilda established residence in middle Tennessee. Four children are known to have been born to them while residing in Tennessee. They were William Haney, Nancy, Martha Jane, and Jeremiah. About 1829 or 1830, Jesse and his family moved to the George's Creek community, west of Yellville, Arkansas (Marion County), where his father, John B. Hudson, had previously settled, and settled on the B. Hampton place on George's Creek. There Jesse built a dam and installed the first cotton gin in Marion County. Later he added a sawmill and corn mill to his establishment and these were probably the first built in the county.

Five children were born to Jesse and Matilda while residing in Marion County, Arkansas. They were Minerva Jane, another girl whose name is unknown, Jasper, John B., and James Sanders.

After coming to Marion County, Arkansas, Jesse and Matilda spent the remainder of their lives there. It is reported by older members of the family and by people who knew them that Jesse was badly crippled during the later years of his life and that his wife lost an arm sometime before her death. Both Jesse and Matilda died sometime between 1860 and 1870.

MINERVA JANE HUDSON

Minerva Jane Hudson, daughter of Jesse and Matilda (Everett) Hudson, was born in George's Creek community, west of Yellville, Arkansas (Marion County), on December 15, 1832. In the early 1850's she married Edward Wood. Sometime in the early part of 1855, Mr. Wood left Marion County, Arkansas, with a group of one hundred or more immigrants. These included both men and women from Arkansas and Missouri. Their destination was southern California.

Minerva Jane was left behind because she was an expectant mother at the time. In 1857, when the immigrants reached Mountain Meadows in Washington County, Utah, they were attacked by Indians and, it is alleged, by Mormans disguised as Indians. All the immigrants were killed (Mountain Meadows Massacre) except some children who were reported to have been distributed among the Mormans but later returned to their families in Arkansas by the government. John D. Lee was convicted as the leader and executed in 1877.

Minerva Jane's child was born on July 17, 1855, and was named George Edward Wood.

THOMAS CROUCHER HUDSON

Thomas Croucher Hudson, the second oldest known son of John B. and Agness Hudson, was born in Kentucky on October 12, 1811. He moved with his father's family to George's Creek Community, west of Yellville, Arkansas (Marion County) about 1822. He first married Betty Young but no children were born to this union. Later he married Elizabeth Perriman. Five children are known to have been born to them while residing in Marion County, Arkansas. They were John Brown, Peggy, Isaac Wilson, Thomas and Allen W. Sometime in the 1850's the family moved to Barry County, Missouri. Thomas Croucher Hudson was a wagon maker and also made spinning wheels and other household appliances used in pioneer life. Thomas and Elizabeth both died in Barry County, Missouri.

John Brown Hudson, the oldest son of Thomas Croucher and Elizabeth Hudson, resided in Carroll County, Arkansas, and Barry County, Missouri, most of his life. It is reported that his sister, Peggy, who married James Taylor, returned to Marion County, Arkansas, to live and probably died there. Issac Wilson, second son of Thomas Croucher and Elizabeth Hudson, taught school in Barry County, Missouri, for a time after his first marriage. He then moved to Peel, Arkansas, in the northern part of Marion County where he lived the remainder of his life. It is not known where Thomas and Allen W., youngest sons of Thomas Croucher and Elizabeth Hudson, resided during their later lives.

NANCY HUDSON

Nancy Hudson, the oldest known daughter of John B. and Agness Hudson, was born in Kentucky about 1812, and moved with her father's family to the George's Creek community, west of Yellville, Arkansas (Marion County) about 1322. When about eighteen or twenty years of age, Nancy married Isaac Kester. Five children are known to have been born to this union: Ailsey, Polly, Ewell, Isaac W., and Louise J. Mr. Kester either died or there was a separation in 1842 or 1850, as the census of Marion County, Arkansas, shows Nancy married to William Goodall. Three children were born to Nancy and William Goodall: Robert, William, and Joseph. Sometime between 1852 and 1860, Nancy Goodall moved to Bosque County, Texas, and settled in the Valley Mills community. It is believed that Nancy spent the remaining years of her life near Valley Mills, Texas, and was buried somewhere in that vicinity.

HUDSON

Hudson (given name unknown), second to the oldest known daughter of John B. and Agness Hudson, was born in Kentucky about 1813 or 1814, and moved with her father's family to the George's Creek community, west of Yellville, Arkansas (Marion County), about 1822. When she was about sixteen years of age, she married Thomas Ewell Everett, whose sister, Matilda, married her brother, Jesse Hudson. Thomas Ewell Everett was the first judge of Marion County, Arkansas, and he served from 1840 - 1842. He was one of the Everett brothers (the others being I.B., John L., and J.N.) who let the Everett faction in the Tutts and Everett's Feud, sometimes referred to in history as the Marion County War, which occurred about 1845.

Sometime between 1846 and 1850, Thomas Ewell Everett's family moved to Valley Mills, Texas, and spent the remainder of their lives there.

MARY JANE HUDSON

Mary Jane Hudson, the youngest child of John B. and Agness Hudson, was born in Kentucky about 1817, and moved with her father's family to George's Creek community, west of Yellville, Arkansas (Marion County), when about five years of age. When she was about fourteen or fifteen years of age, she married John Wood and established residence west of Yellville, Arkansas. Ten children were known to have been born to this union: Thomas, William, John B. (who is reported to have married his cousin, Nancy Ann Everett, and it is also reported that they never had any children), Elizabeth, James, Lucinda, Arminda, George, Obidiah, and Mary. Insofar as is known, Mary Jane and John Wood spent all their lives after marriage in Marion County, Arkansas.

THOMAS CARNEY

Thomas Carney was born in 1789, near Nashville, Tennessee. He moved to Edwards County, Illinois, sometime between 1800 and 1810. About 1812, he married Nancy Warmouth, whose age is unknown. It is reported that Nancy Warmouth was a full-blooded Indian, probably of the Illini Tribe, made up of several tribes, namely: Michigamea, Mongwena, Peoria, Tamaroa, Jollet, Cahokia and Kaskaskia. They called themselves (Illini) which means (the men) because they thought that they were superior to other Indians. Later the French changed the name to Illiones.

Nine children were known to have been born to Thomas and Nancy Carney. They were Melinda, Mariah, Calvin, Mary Ann, Thomas, Jr., John, Walter, Absolum, and Susan Jane. It is not known when or where Nancy was born or died. Thomas moved from Edwards County, Illinois, to Barry County, Missouri, and settled on Flat Creek, near Carney Branch, where he died in 1864.

Calvin Carney, oldest son of Thomas and Nancy Carney, was born on November 11, 1817, in Edwards County, Illinois. He married Clarissa Bassett about 1836 or 1837. Ten children were born to this union: Burton, Minerva, Mariah, Elizabeth, Hester, David, Henry, Sarah, Lafayette and George. Calvin and Clarissa Carney moved from Edwards County, Illinois to the community of Flat Creek, Missouri (Barry County) sometime between 1842 and 1850. They settled on his father's farm on Flat Creek, where he died on April 26, 1899.

Clarissa Bassett Carney, wife of Calvin, was born on June 6, 1820, birthplace unknown. She died September 20, 1965, and was buried on their farm on Flat Creek, Barry County, Missouri.

Minerva Carney, the oldest daughter of Calvin and Clarissa Carney, was born on September 25, 1840, in Edwards County, Illinois. She moved to Barry County, Missouri, with her father's family about 1850. Minerva married John Brown (Grub) Hudson on July 28, 1859. She died on April 27, 1920, and was buried at Carney Cemetery.

JOHN BROWN (GRUB) HUDSON

John Brown Hudson, the oldest son of Thomas Croucher and Elizabeth Hudson, was born on March 8, 1838, in Yellville, Arkansas (Marion County). He married Minerva Carney on July 28, 1859. Seven children are known to have been born to this union: Thomas Calvin, Clarica Elizabeth, John David, Isaac Jacob, Tennessee, Samuel, and Mariah Ann.

Samuel and Tennessee died while young children in Texas.

At the start of the Civil War, John Brown Hudson enlisted in the Arkansas Cavalry and served during the entire war, taking part in many minor engagements and a few real battles. He was noted in his company as a joker and always careless about his equipment. Anything that would hold together was good enough for him and many times he had no bridle for his horse. At Fayetteville, Arkansas, year 1862, his company was ordered to take the town from the Confederate force. As usual, when orders came, Hudson could not find his bridle so he rigged up one by taking a cast of headstall and making a bit out of a piece of rope. He was ready when the command was given to "fall in". When they had come close to the town, a charge was ordered and the company went full speed into the town to find it occupied by a larger force than had been reported. The commanding officer ordered a halt but Hudson's horse had chewed his bit into and was running at full speed into the camp. Therefore, he was captured. When camp was pitched that night he entertained his captors with funny stories and queer antics until they were convinced he was crazy and gave him his freedom on the promise not to fight against them further. The promise held good until he could get out of reach and make it back to his company.

(How he acquired the name, Grub Hudson). Being a "fiddler", he quite naturally took to all the dances held in the vicinity of the soldiers camp. It was at one of these dances that he acquired the name, Grub Hudson, which he carried the rest of his life and by which he was familiarly known by thousands of people. It is reported that he, and others of his company, slipped away without permission to attend a neighborhood dance. As soon as their absence was noted, a non-commissioned officer was sent to look for them. The officer found them at a dance and Hudson was playing the fiddle. The officer secured the names of the others, who gave their correct names. Then he asked Hudson's name. As chance for a joke, Hudson gave the name of John Grub, another member of the company, who was peacefully sleeping in the camp. As a result, Grub was called on the carpet, while Hudson went his way, tormenting others.

After the war, when he had received his discharge, he settled in Carroll County, Arkansas, for a time and then moved to Barry County, Missouri, about 1866. He was residing on Carney Branch, near the Flat Creek post office, when he lost his foot by catching it under a tree that he had felled. He was over a mile from home at the time, and to free himself, he chopped his foot off and crawled home. The amputation, made necessary by the accident, was not entirely satisfactory and the wound never healed. He made himself a wooden leg and walked on it for thirty years. Shortly after the accident, he moved his family on a homestead and with the help of his neighbors, he built a log house on the side of a hill in Baptist Holler, about two miles from the main road. There was a spring above the house and he piped the water to the house through a homemade trough. All they had to do was to dip a bucket into the cedar tub. That was considered modern in 1899 or 1900, especially in that neighborhood.

He and his boys also built a blacksmith shop and a carpenter shop. John (Grub) Hudson, being handy with tools, made himself a coffin out of cedar. He had an idea that he would die on his fifty-fifth birthday. The birthday came and the years passed on; still he lived. His aged father, who made his home with him, fell ill and died and the casket was used to put him away. Another coffin was made and set aside for the day that was sure to come. Years came and went, then a neighbor lady, of a poor family, died. This second coffin was used for her. The third was immediately begun, finished and set aside. For several years it sat in his workshop and was used to store beans and black walnuts. On September 29, 1917, John Brown (Grub) Hudson died of an infection of his foot that never healed. He was buried at Carney Cemetery, near the community of Flat Creek, Missouri (Barry County).

CHAPTER 3

THOMAS CALVIN HUDSON

Thomas Calvin Hudson, the oldest known son of John Brown (Grub) and Minerva (Carney) Hudson, was born on June 8, 1860, in the eastern part of Barry County, Missouri. In 1885, he married Mattie Elizabeth Sumners, the oldest daughter of Price and Martha Sumners of Cape Fair, Missouri. Mattie was a sister to Francis Charity Sumners who later married John David Hudson, brother to Thomas Calvin Hudson.

Thomas and Mattie were known to have resided in Cape Fair, Missouri, for about two years. From there they moved to a farm near the community of Flat Creek, Missouri, Barry County. Five children were known to have been born to this union. They were Minnie F., Ola Elmer, Lena May, Harra O., and Otto.

Thomas was a blacksmith and a farmer. It is reported that he owned and operated the first blacksmith shop in the community of Flat Creek for several years. He later moved his shop to his farm, located about three miles north of the Flat Creek post office. It was while living on this farm that he engaged in farming and stock raising.

Mattie was born on August 19, 1866, at Cape Fair, Missouri (Stone County). She died on July 22, 1906, and was buried at Carney Cemetery which is located near the community of Flat Creek.

It is reported that a few years after the death of Mattie, Thomas sold his farm and moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma, and lived with his daughter, Minnie. Sometime around 1935, he moved back to Barry County, Missouri. He died at Cassville, Missouri, on August 29, 1936, and was buried in Carney Cemetery near Flat Creek, Missouri, (Barry County).

MINNIE F. HUDSON

Minnie F. Hudson, the oldest daughter of Thomas Calvin and Mattie F. Hudson, was born July 12, 1886, at Cape Fair, Missouri (Stone County). She moved with her parents to the community of Flat Creek, Missouri, and settled on a small farm near the Flat Creek post office.

On December 5, 1908, Minnie married Eligah Hilton of Crane, Missouri, and they settled on a farm north of town. Two girls, Faye Elizabeth and Fannie May, were born to this union. Sometime between 1912 and 1915, Minnie and Eligah separated and Minnie and the two girls moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma. After the girls were married, Minnie moved to Oklahoma City and was employed by the Skirvin Hotel as an executive housekeeper. She worked in the same capacity for the Cheyenne Hotel in Wyoming. She was also employed for some time by the Holiday Inn in Oklahoma City. Minnie now lives in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and is retired. (1968)

FAYE ELIZABETH HILTON

Faye Elizabeth Hilton, the oldest daughter of Minnie and Eligah Hilton, was born on February 1, 1910, in Crane, Missouri (Stone County). She moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma, with her mother when she was about twelve years old. Her first marriage was to Paul Crabaugh in September, 1927. Three children were born to this union: Jimmy Loyd, Barbara Faye, and Gene Paul. Sometime between 1936 and 1940, Faye and Paul were divorced. Faye then married Charley Petersen. One child, Carl Burt, was born to this union. They were separated sometime later and Faye died on June 23, 1966, at her mother's home in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

FANNIE MAY HILTON

Fannie May Hilton, the youngest daughter of Minnie and Eligah Hilton, was born on February 29, 1912, in Crane, Missouri (Stone County). She moved with her mother and sister to Tulsa, Oklahoma, when she was ten years old. She married Andrew Edwin Dooley on July 12, 1930. Three children were born to this union: Bobby Joe, Billie, and Roy Edwin. Fannie now resides with her mother in Tulsa, Oklahoma. (1968)

OLA ELMER HUDSON

Ola Elmer Hudson, the oldest son of Thomas Calvin and Mattie Elizabeth Hudson, was born on February 5, 1889, in the community of Flat Creek, Missouri (Barry County). When a young man, Ola decided he would like to become a cowboy. He headed for the western states where he hired out and worked on various ranches. He finally settled and worked for several years on the big Antler Ranch in Montana. The owner, McHendrix, was reputed to be a millionaire with a large spread and thousands of cattle. The ranch was open, unfenced country and was located on the Crow Indian Reservation. There were eight or nine regular cowboys who worked on the ranch year round and "reps" were hired when they were needed. Each cowboy was assigned seven or eight horses from the remuda. Many of the horses were not broken and it took a good bronc rider to handle them. Ola and the other cowboys would follow the chuck wagons and sleep in bedrolls on the ground with temperatures of forty degrees below zero. They were exposed to this frigid weather all winter long and it is said that Ola was never sick a day.

The United States entered World War I and Ola enlisted in the United States Army on March 6, 1918, in Hardin, Montana. He served with the 4th Corps, 2nd Army, on the Lorraine front in France from October 6, 1918, to November 11, 1918. He returned to the United States on the "U.S.S. Santa Paula" and was discharged on May 5, 1919. He returned to his job as a cowboy on the Antler Ranch.

Ola returned to Missouri and on December 23, 1919, married Mary Ellen (Mollie) Seitz. They both moved back to Montana and settled on the Antler Ranch but the climate was too cold for Mollie and she returned to Missouri. This was not a satisfactory arrangement so Ola quit his job and moved back to Missouri to be with Mollie. From there they moved to Oklahoma and he worked in the oil fields near Tulsa. ## CHAPTER 5

JOHN DAVID HUDSON (Son of JOHN BROWN HUDSON)

John David Hudson, the second oldest son of John Brown and Minerva Hudson, was born on May 29, 1866, in Barry County, Missouri. Sometime between 1869 and 1880, he moved with his father's family to northern Arkansas (Carroll County), near Eureka Springs. While living in Arkansas he made a trip to Texas with his father's family, traveling by covered wagon. They lived in Texas for three years and then returned to Carroll County Arkansas, where he worked at a sawmill. It is reported that John hauled lumber to build the first hotel in Eureka Springs.

In about 1885, John moved back to Barry County, Missouri, and married Francis Charity Summers, daughter of Price and Martha Summers and sister of Mattie Summers, who had married his oldest brother. John and Francis were married on December 18, 1887, at Cape Fair, Missouri. They settled on the Dave Potter farm on Flat Creek, between the Flat Creek post office and Cape Fair.

Five boys and one girl were known to have been born to John and Francis. They were Uda Clarence, Aud Carrol, Etta May, Mirl Clesson, Otis Earl, and Oval Harold. John and Francis resided on several farms in the community of Flat Creek. About 1896, they settled on a railroad claim about three miles north of the Flat Creek post office, built a two room log house and it was while living here that Francis lost her eyesight. She was totally blind for the rest of her life and she never saw her youngest son. In 1907, John and Francis moved to the Ode Griffy Farm on Carney Branch and purchased one of the first telephones in that community. About 1915, they moved on the Farnham place, down the holler and near the old Carney schoolhouse. They farmed here for about two years and then moved to southern California with their three youngest children. They established residence in Rivera (Los Angeles County). John worked on several ranches until 1918, when they returned to Missouri. They made several trips back to California, one in a Model-T Ford, the rest by train. They returned to Missouri and in about 1939, John retired and spent the rest of his life in and around Crane, Missouri (Stone County). He died there on September 27, 1955, at the age of eighty-nine and was buried in Crane Cemetery.

UDA CLARENCE HUDSON

Uda Clarence Hudson, the oldest son of John David and Francis Charity Hudson, was born on October 7, 1889, in Barry County, Missouri. He married Mabel Clara Curry on April 2, 1911, and moved in with his father's family. At that time they lived on a farm on Carney Branch, near Flat Creek, Missouri. He helped his father drill for water in and around the communities of Flat Creek and Jenkins. Uda and Mabel's first child, Lorita, was born while they were living on this farm. In January 1913, they moved to Arkansas and settled on the Elmer Johnson farm on White River, near Springdale (Washington County). Their second child, Juanita, was born while they were living here. Sometime in 1915, they moved to southern California and settled in Rivera, a small town about ten miles east of Los Angeles. Uda worked on the Burke Ranch, in the orange and walnut orchards, for about four years. While living there, their third child, Loyd, was born. In 1919, they moved to Montebello, California. A new oil field had just opened in the Montebello foothills. Because of Uda's experience in water well drilling, he had no trouble securing a job as a rough neck in the oil fields. He soon became a combination driller and took part in the drilling of several wildcat wells in and around the Montebello and Whittier area. While living in Montebello, their fourth child, Helen, was born. Sometime in 1927, they moved to Long Beach, California. From 1922 to 1964, Uda was employed by Universal Consolidated Oil Company and retired as General Superintendent with forty-two years of service. He is now living in Long Beach, California. (1968)

The citation stated that he displayed utter disregard for his own safety and though severely wounded, he insisted that every man under his command be evacuated before allowing himself to be moved to a place of safety. He was promoted to first lieutenant and made commander of his company. He served in this capacity with General Patton's Third Army.

After World War II, Loyd married Evelyn Sposito. One child, James Darrell, was born to them on June 13, 1950. Loyd worked for Eastman Survey Company for ten years.
